Phoenix Company Rejuvenated an Two Others Are Now Knocking at the Municipal Door.

Mayor Taggart and the Board of Public Works held another conference in the ofce of City Attorney Curtis, yesterday afternoon, on the telephone question. To simplify matters, it was practically decided to introduce an ordinance in Council requiring all telephone and telegraph companies to place their wires under ground using one trench. The ordinance proposed will provide that the companies shall make compensation to the city for all damage done improved streets, and to restore them and keep them in order. This, City Attorney Curtis says, can be done by the city in the exercise of its rights to make police regulations. The Central Union Telephone and Western Union Telegraph ephone and Western Union Telegraph not compel them to do so. One woman, in companies have expressed a willingness to speaking of this matter a few days ago, comply with such an ordinance, and other companies will be compelled to do so, whether willing or not.

Some such ordinance is regarded as being necessary, as there are several companies now knocking for admission to the city, and in granting franchises in the future it would simplify matters if the comwould have to do to get permission to

A new proposition was made by the Phoenix Telephone Company yesterday, through a delegation of stockholders headed by ex-Judge Lewis C. Walker. A Phoenix company, and it is now asking that the action of the former board be ratified, with a few modifications. The franchise given a year ago provided that the Phoenix company should furnish tele- happy aired in public. phones at $2.50 a month for residences and $3 for business places within a two-mile square, and 50 cents for each additional mile. The company was to pay 5 per cent. of its gross earnings into the city treasury after the year 1900. No provision was made for burying the wires. The new proposition contemplates that the company shall pay 3 per cent. of its gross earnings to the city when other telephone compa- ago, but returned on his promise to do nies are so taxed, and that all wires shall go under ground.

Mr. McNaughton, president of the Standard Telephone Company, of New York, is interested in the Phoenix, and declares that the latter company has no connection with the Central Union, Bell or American Bell telephone companies, and Judge Walker asserted that the Phoenix company was not asking for the franchise as a speculation, but was a bona fide concern, anxious to come into this city and compete for the telephone business. The company proposes, however, to change its name to one that will give local color, and agrees to furnish first-class long-distance instruments. If the franchise is granted the company agrees to have its plant in operation within a year, and by that time, it claims, will have long-distance wires connecting Indianapolis with all large that the company would be granted a franchise, as the city would surely be benefited by competition. The city officials express some doubt as to the intentions of the Phoenix company, as it made plenty of promises a year ago, which were not of promises a year ago, which were not fulfilled.

Competition is expected from another direction, also, against the Central Union Telephone Company. E. H. Andress, of Lafayette, president of the Indiana Mu-tual Telephone Association, wrote the Board of Public Works a letter last week, asking for a conference. This association is made up of representatives of telephone companies throughout the State, who met here and organized last winter for the avowed purpose of seeking from Indian-apolis a franchise permitting the establishment of a central station and the operation of lines that would furnish them with intercommunication and would permit them to get in touch with the wholesale business circles of Indianapolis. At that time they claimed that the Central Union company refused to make connection with their lines at reasonable toll rates. Failing in an effort to obtain a franchise, the association decided to ask the city officials to insert provisions in franchises granted other companies, requiring them to make connections with other lines at just rates of toll. Mr. Curtis said yesterday that he did not see that the city would lose any-thing by granting the Phoenix and Mutual companies franchises, as such a course would encourage competition and could not harm the city in any way.

Gen. E. P. Meany returned from St.

Louis and held another conference with the city officials yesterday. He is trying to impress upon everybody the superior facilities the Central Union Telephone Company has over all others, in the hope of escaping without having to make many concessions. He claims that the telephone subscribers who can sit in their offices and talk to all the principal cities of the country ought to expect to pay more for such privileges than if they merely had the opportunity to converse with their neigh-bors. Mr. Curtis says a great many per-sons would prefer to pay $5 a month and have such privileges, but there are plenty of others who would seldom or never have occasion to talk to New York, and who would get adequate accommodations from such companies as the Phoenix and the "I am glad all these questions are being carefully discussed," said he, "as we're much enlightened by the different views that are expressed. This telephone question is very interesting to us, and we want to do the best thing possible. We regard the question of getting the wires under ground as the most important thing." When will all these subjects be disposed

"It is hard to tell, as there is so much complication, but we intend to dispose of them as soon as possible."
The board has instructed the city torney to prepare an answer to the Phoenix company's proposition by Wednesday. Meantime further conferences will be held with General Meany, and the case of the Indiana Mutual Telephone Association will be taken up later.

DIVORCE DAY HORRORS

MORAL DEGENERATES REVEL I THE FILTHY TESTIMONY.

Mrs. Castor Gets a Divorce from the Coroner, and Frank R. Rose Is Separated from His Wife.

Yesterday was divorce day in the Superior Courts and there was a choice bit of social linen aired in the presence of many of the women who revel in listening good paying location, for trade for equity in to such tales of sorrow and domestic infelicity. To a certain class of women otherwise entirely respectable, the tales told in court on divorce days seem to have special attraction and there are many who never miss spending the day in listening to the sorrow that is there displayed to the public. It is true that part of the women who may be found in court on these days are not there of their own volition, but are compelled to attend as witnesses, but even in such cases there is a place provided in the courthouse where they can remain until they are called to the stand and they would not be compelled to hear all the tales of immorality and sin that are

There was a case on trial yesterday in which the testimony was about as filthy, morally speaking, as could well be, but it is a case in which those who are familiar with it believe that there is a great injustice being done the woman in the case and her young daughter, both of whom were accused by the plaintiff in the case of being little better than the common woman of the town. There were accusations against the character of the daughter brought out in the testimony, that is accusations which had been previously made by the plaintiff, which are thought to be entirely groundless, yet through it all the young girl was compelled to sit there in the court room by her mother's side and bear the scornful gaze of half a hundred women, many of whom were there merely as scandal mongers and neighborhood gossip-bearers. humiliation she felt, but when her face reddened when a particularly choice morsel of food for gossip came out in the evidence the only sympathy she got from her own sex was a lengthening of the aiready overstretched necks of those present who called themselves women, in their anxiety to see how the charge affected the girl. It is a common saying that woman has no sympathy for the accused of her own sex and it takes only one visit to court on divorce day to firmly convince one of the truth of the saying. There are exceptions to the rule, but these exceptions do not visit the divorce court when necessity does said it is hard to convince her that the women who are constant in their attendance at the divorce court are fit associates for respectable women, but it is known that some women who revel in the scenes of the divorce courts are spotless in their moral character. The chronic hangers-on in these places seem to compose a class of moral degenerates which has not been studied very much by sociologists, although presents a wide field for their labor. panies understood beforehand what they | One woman who was seen in court yesterday is a loving mother and wife. She has two young daughters, sfust budding into womanhood, and she would look with horror upon the thought of allowing either of them to be contaminated with the tales she hears in divorce courts at every opportunity. She is as regular in her attendance as her domestic duties will permit year ago a franchise was given to the and she generally arranges her affairs so she can go to market Saturday morning incidentally attend court to hear a

She is a loving mother and a true wife, yet for some inexplicable reason she cannot resist the temptation to hear the domestic affairs of those less Gertrude Castor was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Harvey from Hiram Castor, county coroner. She secured the custody of their children and $15 a month for its support and $1,000 alimony. The charge was cruel treatment. Dr. Castor entered an appearance by his attorney, but did not go to the court room or contest the case. The trouble arose over Castor's infatuation for Miss Daisy Hall, who was formerly employed in his office as stenog-rapher. Mrs. Castor left him some time better. He failed to keep his promise. Dr. Castor's mother was in court and gave testimony against her son. She said she had done everything sher could to prevent him from deserting his wife for Miss Hall. Several times she had followed him when he was out riding with the girl and one time she had attempted to get into the buggy with them; but Dr. Castor struck knocked her down.

CHARGES AGAINST HER LAWYER. Augusta Cordes's Complaint Against

Wilborn Wilson. Yesterday Augusta Cordes brought suit in the Superior Court against Wilborn Wilson, an attorney, to set aside an assignment of a note and mortgage, which she claims was secured by fraud. She is the plaintiff in a divorce case which is now pending in the Superior Court and Wilson was her attorney in the case. She claims in her complaint that she told Wilson that she held notes secured by mortgage for $600 and that she had been unable to make collections on them. It is further alleged that Wilson told her it would be necessary for her to sign a paper at the courthouse to prevent her husband from securing control of the notes. She is German and can careely speak English. She went with Wilson to the courthouse and there signed her name, but did not know, she says, what she was signing, depending upon Wilson, as er attorney, to knew that she was doing only what was necessary. Since then she alleges she has learned that she signed an assignment of the mortgage and notes to Wilson "in consideration of $600." She laims that the assignment was obtained by fraud and asks the court to set it aside.

THE FAIR GROUNDS PICNIC Arrangements for Celebrating the Glorious Fourth There.

The Indianapolis Driving Ciub have completed arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration to be made at the fair grounds. The programmes have not yet been printed, but all the events of the day have been settled upon and the purses have been proided. It will be a whole day of sport and persons desiring may spend the entire day in the grounds. The club has let lunch privileges to responsible persons and there ber of days in advance to reach Denver | will be all kinds of refreshments served in the evening of the 6th or the morning of the grounds, Others who desire may carry lunches with them and they will have tee. The railroads have granted a rate of the advantage of the cool woods at the west side of the grounds and plenty of good water. The street railroad company has assured the club that ample street car | Haag's Liver Pills cure constipation accommodations will be furnished so that the usual complaint that the people could not get to the fair grounds will not obtain. The sport will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning with horse races which will continue until noon. During the same time there will be a game of base ball in progress before the grand stand, played by two good amateur teams of this city. At 1:30 o'clock there will be a gentlemen's road race. This is a novelty here and promises to be one of the chief attractions of the day. The conditions of the race are as follows: Owners shall drive their horses hitched to four-wheeled vehicles; no pro-fessional driver and no horse that is in training, shall participate. The purse will be $100 to the winner. A number of gentle-men have declared their intention to enter Among those talking of it are Matthew Arbuekle, Thomas Taggart, W. N. Short, Sterling R. Holt, E. J. Robinson, Mr. Lazant, Arthur C. Newby, J. C. Sipe, Horace Woods, Al Cavett, C. E. Shover and

Thomas Christian. Military drills will occupy the greater part of the afternoon, following the road race. The drills are open to all companies of the State and will be under the command of Capt. James B. Curtis, of the Indianapolis Light Artillery. He will select the judges, if possible, from members of the United States regular army. The grand review of the competing companies will occur at 2 o'clock and will be followed by the zouave drill. For this drill the purse is $225, of which $150 to first and $75 to second. The light infantry drill will come next, with $200 to the winner, and $100 to second. The millitary drills will conclude with an exhibition drill by the Indianapolis Light Artillery under Captain Curtis for a purse

Music during the entire day will be furnished by the Second Regiment Band. Special music is now being prepared for the drills. The price of admission has been fixed at 25 cents.

Asked Her to Say Nothing and Allow Him to Have Credit for What She Did in Detective Work.

In denying the charges made against him by Mrs. George K. Schofield, Superintendent Colbert told the Journal that he had one his entire duty in connection with the recovery of her jewelry; that more money had been spent for that purpose than in any similar case, and that the police department had recovered and returned part of the stolen property. This last assertion, Mrs. Schoffeld says, is absolutely false, as she has recovered nothing excepting one of the least valuable of her rings and two scarf pins. These three articles she says she recovered herself and that the police can claim no credit on that score. On her second trip to Hamilton, O., to see Mc-Carty he gave her a ring he had concealed in his shirt front in order to convince her that he was telling the truth when he declared that he knew where the stuff was and could induce one of his accomplices, "Boots," to come here and get it. McCarty also informed her that the prosecuting attorney at Hamilton had two scarf pins belonging to her, which were taken off his person when he was arrested for having The Superintendent accompanied Mrs.

Schofield to Hamilton, but was not present at her interview with McCarty. She says that when she showed him the ring he seemed much pleased and remarked that her trip was not altogether in vain, as the recovery of the ring would repay her for making the trip. At that time she told the superintendent about the two scarf pins and he secured a promise from the Mayor of Hamilton, if Mrs. Schofield's impression is correct, that the pins should be sent here after McCarty's trial. If the police have recovered anything at all, Mrs. Schoneld says, it must be these two scarf pins. Since the last interview she had with the superintendent at his office, when he stood by and allowed Larry McKeon to say inilting and brutal things to her, Mrs. Schofield says she has not returned to the police station, although detective Thornton told her that they had something there for her. Mrs. Schofield regards it as rather peculiar for Mr. Colbert to claim that part of her property has been recovered by the police, when the only things she got back was through her own efforts. Without the information she got from Claude St. Clair, the police would have had absolutely no clews to work upon, and she says Superintendent Colbert asked her to allow the department to have the credit for what was done. He wished to avoid the embarrassment of having it known publicly that an inexperienced little woman had been able to accomplish more than the entire department, police and detectives combined In the matter of expenses, Mrs. Schofield says it is true that considerable money may have been paid for car fare and hotel expenses, as the Superintendent went to Hamilton twice and detective Thornton made two or three trips to Cincinnati. But for the fact that St. Clair made partial confessions to her nothing would have been known of McCarty's implication, and there would have been no necessity to send any one to Cincinnati, as it would not have been known that St. Clair had shipped the goods to McKeon. Mrs. Schofield says the police verified the statement of St. Clair by examining the express books, and found that a package had been shipped to Larry McKeon, at Andy Wetzel's saloon, corner Until McKeon's connection with the she is confident that the Superintendent did everything possible, and seemed detercame here and might have been arrested he was not only allowed to go unmolested. but the Superintendent ordered Thornton to buy his ticket and send him back to Cincinnati, and this on Saturday night, at a time when he knew Mrs. Schofield could not swear out a warrant herself. Mrs. Schofield says that friends intimated to her that Colbert's ardor would cool when he really had an opportunity to pro-ceed against McKeon, as there were political and other ties which he could not dis-regard. She was informed, also, that Col-bert had used McKeon to obtain the secrets of his cronies. One instance cited to her was a case where McKeon had been given $10 to spend in "Monk" Wilson's saloon, but instead of obtaining any informa-tion for the Superintendent he spent the money buying drinks for the crowd, boasting that he was "spending Colbert's money." At the time these intimations were made to Mrs. Schofield she had implicit confidence in the Superintendent's in-tegrity, and mentioned what she had Colbert was very angry, declared the stories were lies, and assurred her she would be convinced that they were false if she would have a little patience. When the Superintendent afterward assured McKeon, while the latter was abusing Mrs. Schofield, that he was among friends and would be protected, she could not but believe Colbert was under obligations to McKeon or feared him for some reason. It was for an explanation of these circumstances that she appealed to Mr.

ATTACKED A CONSUMPTIVE

And the Police Arrest the Victim with one of the Offenders.

A small riot occurred in and about W. Susmal's saloon; at 304 South Illinois street, yesterday evening, which resulted in the arrest of D. C. Coll, of 432 South Illinois street, Dennis O'Brien, of 280 South Capitol avenue, and M. F. Smiley. . The trouble seems to have begun in the alley in the rear of the saloon and was continued to Merrill street. Coll and Smiley and others had been drinking freely during the after-noon, and when they tried to get more beer Susmal refused to sell it to them. The crowd then went out into the alley, and, as witnesses say, Coll and Smiley assaulted Dennis O'Brien, a young man who had not been associated with them in their drinking bout and who gave them no provocation. O'Brien is a consumptive and had come out of his home for the first time in several months. He tried to escape from the men and ran to Merrill street. Jack O'Brien, a fireman, is a brother of Dennis, and when he saw what was up he ran over and captured Coll, not, however, without landing a couple of well-delivered blows upon his facial anatomy. Sergeant Kruger and patrolmen Folzenlogie and Guntz happened to be passing on a car at the time and they arrested Smiley and Dennis

TWO ACRES OF FILTERS

THAT'S WHAT THE WATER COM-

PANY WILL HAVE TO CONSTRUCT. City Sanitarian's Plan, Which Mr. Davis Promised to Follow Before Knowing What It Was. F. A. W. Davis, vice president of the Indianapolis Water Company, armed with a bundle of written analyses and prepared to make voluble excuses, bobbed up before Mayor Taggart and the Board of Public Works yesterday morning. Mayor Taggart curtly informed him that the city was more anxious to hear what he proposed doing in the way of furnishing purer water ed when he began saying that the com-than to listen to vague assertions that the water was good. Mr. Davis was interruptpany was at work, Mayor Taggart impatiently exclaiming that the city did not care to know what would be done for the future, but immediately. He was again that the city knew the water company was not prepared to guard against accidental fog said he gave a man $2.25 for the coin mined to recovery her jeweiry. He was not prepared to guard against accidental also loud in denouncing McKeon, she says. while he was out of reach, but when he done to prevent such a micken Mr. Devide done to prevent such a mishap. Mr. Davis then announced that the water company would do whatever the city sanitarian might suggest. A specific promise was all the city wanted, Mayor Taggart said, and informed Mr. Davis that the city sanitarian and Board of Health would be prepared to submit a plan Monday morn-

Before this very spirited interview ended the question of the purchase of the plant by the city was brought up by Baker & Daniels, attorneys for the water company who were with Mr. Davis. They intimated that if the city did not notify the com-pany of its intention to purchase before 1897, the old contract of the company would be in force. This contract, they asserted, was virtually perpetual. Mayor Taggart dismissed the subject by saying that the city now wants pure water and would consider the matter of buying the City Sanitarian Ferguson says that the plan he will submit to the water company to-morrow morning at 3 o'clock will pro-vide for a sand-bed filter system, including reservoirs to store the water both before and after it is filtered. A filter bed in the river, he said, would be comparatively worthless, as to secure the best results it is necessary for the water to stand over the beds and seep through. Basing his estimation of the water that it is necessary to obtain, on statements of the water company. Dr. Ferguson says that filters of two acres in area will be adequate, in addition to the present supply from the wells. Mr. Davis has said that the company is now using about 12,000,000 gallons a day. about two-thirds of which comes from the wells. Mr. Allen Hazen, the water company's filter expert, stated that a one-acre filter would properly cleanse 2,000,000 gallons a day. After it is filtered the water must be stored in covered reservoirs, to prevent algea (vegetable) growth, Dr. Ferguson says, and the reservoirs must be so constructed as to prevent the inseep of sewage. It is supposed that these plans will entail an expenditure of about $200,000. Mr. Davis says that the filters can be constructed at $50,000 an acre. It is supposed that the reservoirs will cost as much more. Dr. Ferguson will recommend sand-bed filters in preference to mechanical devices, because it is known that the former are reliable and there is no data at hand on mechanical filtration. He says that he will visit the experimental station at Lawrence, Mass., early in July, in order to observe what is being done in the way of filtration. He may possibly inspect some of the other systems in operation in Rhode Island be-fore returning home. Dr. Ferguson says that he has no personal knowledge of the relative merits of the different systems and what they will cost, his knowledge being based solely on what he has read. It will take two or three months to carry out Dr. Ferguson's plans.

Suburban Notes.

Several of the West Indianapolis city officials have received anonymous letters during the last week in which methods and suggestions have been advanced regarding the correction of certain evils that threaten the city. The closing of saloons on Sundays and the extinction of gambling in the suburb are the principal reforms demanded.

Ground was broken on Sutherland street.

Brightwood, yesterday for the purpose of improving the street with cement sidewalks. The citizens of the suburb have had to content themselves with gravel walks in the past, and this will be the first cement sidewalk in town. Councilman J. C. McCain, of West Indianapolis, who has been on a business trip to Monroe, O., for the past four days, is expected home to-day. Officers Stoddard and Mulberger raided a crap game in George Keller's saloon on Hadley avenue, West Indianapolis, last night and captured eight players.

HE HAD A "SPIEL MARK."

Crap Game Under a Street Electric Light for an Hour.

Solomon Woodfog and Joseph Rounds were arrested yesterday afternoon by parolman Rinker charged with passing counterfeit money. Last Saturday night a crowd of colored men congregated under the electric light near the corner of the Big Four railroad and Third street to induige in a quiet game of craps. They gambled there for an hour or more and were undisturbed by the police. Solomon Woodfog lost what money he had and then produced a curious looking coin caffed a "spiel mark" and "rung it in" for a two-dollar-and-a-half gold piece. At the wind-up it seems that the coin was in the possession of Joseph Rounds, and when he questioned the value of the coin Woodfor teld him to cut short when he said that the company was sinking new wells to ascertain if a sufficient supply could be obtained from that source, Mayor Taggart declaring that

A West Indianapolis Veterinary Sur-

About two weeks ago Robert Matheson, of No. 125 Greenwood street, left a horse with Cross for treatment, and last Sunday when he made inquiry for the horse he learned that Cross and the borse were both missing. Cross had last been seen the day before riding the animal across the Kentucky-avenue bridge to the city. He had a position on a railroad offered him at Albany, N. Y., and it was supposed he sold the horse to get money to see there he was horse to get money to go there. He re-turned to his home yesterday and was ar-

He thought the car was going to stop for him but as he was not waiting at a stopping point the motorman had no intention o opping, and simply slowed up to avo a collision with a passing wagon. The City Dispensary ambulance removed Mr. Roach to his home, corner of Martindale avenue and Fifteenth street.

Clarence McLean's Trick Riding. Clarence McLean, of Covington, Ky. gave an exhibition of trick and fancy bicycle riding last night at Hay & Willits's "Outing" riding school, Mr. McLean classes among the best trick riders of the world. He is twenty years old, and has acquired his wonderful ability in a comparatively short time. In fact, riding a bicycle was natural with him, and he does not know the day that the ordinary tricks of riders were not easy to him. He had to learn thera. But he works hard at tricks which are impossible to many ex-pert and professional riders. He is one of the four trick riders who have been invite to compete for the world's cham at the L. A. W. national meet to be held ouisville in August, and is confident that e will be the winner. Mr. McLean is now in the employ of Hay Willits, and the exhibition last night was given on an Outing wheel. It was somewhat new to Mr. McLean, and yet he devoted the second part of the exhibition exclusively to tricks learned by him in the
